Image: NBC Hard to believe Star Trek has been a part of pop culture since the 1960s! We experienced the original crew with Captain Kirk on television, and later in the form of cartoons, and later on the big screen not only in their familiar form, but also in overloaded form. We met Captain Picard and a new generation of crew, followed by a very different environment on the space station Deep Space Nine. Then we have to experience a frightening new part of the space with the USS Voyager crew before heading back in time to meet Captain Archer and the crew of the first USS Enterprise. All this leads to a dark and fast-paced universe in which the Discovery Crew exists. With all that trek draw from, the masters really managed to establish themselves separately as people with real and interesting personalities. They turn to problems with different tactics, and discuss which of them was the best became a trekkie last time. Any of them do you think are most similar to you?
